PROJECTS

Card Game Simulator

Sept. 2020 – Present

A web app built using node.js and the HTML5 framework Phaser 3 for OSU's Computer Science group capstone project. The app allows anyone to join around a table and play any card game they like. The app concept was created and developed by me, as the leader of our group. The app includes a dynamic table and hand system and node.js server, built from the ground up by me.

smallsh.c

Nov. 2020

A bash-like shell application that I wrote in C for my operating systems class. The application allows users to use commands to navigate directories (such as cd, status, and exit), execute other programs with execvp both in the application's foreground or background, and make custom signal handlers for SIGINT and SIGTSTP.

Pokémon Database

Jun. 2018 – Aug. 2018

An interactive website created solely by me for my databases class, that users can browse a database of Pokémon. Users can add new Pokémon, and search based on type or location. The app was built using Node.js, Express.js, and MySQL.
